DOWN TO EARTH PROUDLY HOLDS NON-GMO SALE TO CELEBRATE HAWAII RESIDENTS' RIGHT TO KNOW!

Ua Mau ke Ea o ka 'Āina i ka Pono, "The life of the land is perpetuated in righteousness", Hawaii's state motto was first uttered by Queen Ke'opuolani in 1825. Righteousness can be understood as "right" or "right action." GMOs are not "right," they disrespect and lead to desecration of the 'aina both here in Hawaii and worldwide. GMOs are not pono, they are not right.

This October, Down to Earth is one of more than 1,500 grocery retailers across North America participating in the third annual Non-GMO Month—a celebration of people's right to choose food and products that do not contain genetically modified organisms (GMOs). Down to Earth is celebrating Non-GMO Month with a special sale on select Non-GMO products that have been approved to display the Non-GMO Project Verified Seal on the packaging.

Customers can identify their Non-GMO Project Verified choices with special shelf tags, end cap displays, and educational materials in all our stores. The sale will continue until November 14th.

Surveys consistently show that more than 90% of Americans want to know whether or not their food contains GMOs, and 2012 has seen a groundswell in the "right to know" movement. In the past year, over 1.2 million Americans have contacted the FDA asking them to implement mandatory labeling of GMO foods.

Public concern about GMOs is rising as studies increasingly raise doubts about the long-term safety and environmental impact of this experimental technology. Genetic engineering forces DNA from one species into the DNA of a different species, resulting in unstable combinations of plant, animal, bacterial and viral genes that cannot occur in nature or through traditional breeding.

The right to know what we're eating and feeding our families is a basic right. Americans deserve the same freedom to avoid experimental GMO foods as people in other countries. GMO labeling is mandatory in nearly 50 countries around the world, including Australia, Russia, China, and all of Europe, but no such requirements exist in the U.S.

In response to the regulatory void, more than a dozen states have taken up GMO labeling bills in the last year, including a voter initiative in California called Prop 37 that puts mandatory GMO labeling on this November's ballot.

While consumers fight for their right to know at the polls, the Non-GMO Project provides shoppers an immediate solution to the presence of unlabeled GMOs. As the only third party non-GMO verification in North America, the Non-GMO Project Verified seal is quickly gaining popularity. It is now the fastest growing label claim in the natural products industry with more than 5,000 Non-GMO Project Verified products.

For residents of Hawaii, Down to Earth is making it especially easy to find Non-GMO Project Verified choices throughout our stores. With GMOs now contaminating as much as 80% of packaged foods in conventional grocery supermarkets, we are more committed than ever to helping people find safe, healthy non-GMO choices.

We believe people have the right to know what's in their food, and we are proud to celebrate it with our Non-GMO products sale.

For more information about GMOs see the "Stop GMOs" page on Down to Earth's website:
